Sheriff Phipps, O. K.

WEST LIBERTY, KY., (Special) March 2.—This section of Morgan county is now, and has been for three days past, in the highest pitch of excitement on account of the alleged shortage of Sheriff J. D. Phipps. It was, however, all uncalculated for and was the result of a scare, owing to so many failures in the sheriff's office in this county. Your correspondent called on Mr. Phipps, who is very indignant over the matter, and when asked about the shortage alleged, he made the following statements, which are self explanatory.

"The business in the sheriff's office for 1895 and for which I am responsible, is in good condition. The taxes for '95, when collected, will amount to about $15,000. Of this amount only half has been collected, leaving my official assets at not less than $7,000. My quietes was obtained promptly, but through my private means, as I did not press the people for their taxes on account of the hard times. The county claims have all been paid except $2,800, leaving a total balance to my credit when collected of $4,200. Of course, these figures are not exact, as I am not sure how much my deputies have collected of late, but it is a good estimate and if this is not shown to be the case, then I will give a lie-bill."

"What about the charge of embezzlement against you?" I asked him.

"Why, it's a fraud from beginning to end, and a put up job by my political enemies. The fact is, the county owes me and my deputies at least $4,000, and yet I am blackmailed by charging me with embezzling the county's money. There has not even been a suit brought against me on a single claim, and why my securities are doing the way they are is beyond my knowing."

"When did you first learn of this charge?" was then asked.

"I was at Morehead trying to dispose of some damaged goods that had gone through a fire. My losses by fire last week were $1,200 at least calculation, which makes over $2,000 for me this year by fire and no insurance. They tried to get the sheriff of Rowan county to arrest me, but he refused to do so and telephoned them of it. The whole business is a dirty piece of slander and they may be sorry for it before it is over with. You can say to the people through THE HERALD that their business is all right in every particular, as they will see upon investigation."

EX-Sheriff B. M. Carr's bondsmen have paid off the 1891 claims as per agreement Saturday. Discoveries of over $400 were found yesterday in Carr's favor. Many more are expected to be found and the shortage for the four years, which was estimated at from $8,000 to $7,000 will not be near so much.

We are sometimes so near a thing that we cannot see it. This is especially true in the matter of our own physical health. Many a woman is suffering from sick-headaches, and although relief is right at her elbow, she does not see it. Let such a woman ask her druggist for Ramon's Tonic Liver Pills (and Pellets), and take them for a few days until completely cured. The entire cost is but 25 cents—trial dose free.

LIFE IS WORTH LIVING

When You Know How to Enjoy It and Have the Means.

The following letter, received by our better-1 from her niece, Dr. Annie H. McFarland, tells of a trip which all of us would have enjoyed, and contains some information that is both instructive and interesting, hence its reproduction.

AGUAS CALIENTES, MEXICO, February, 26, 1896.

My Darling Aunt: You will be surprised to receive a letter from this quarter of the globe, unless Mae has written you of the lovely trip I am having. I think I have written you of my friend and academy class-mate, who married a millionaire railroad man and lives in Lincoln, Neb. Well, I am traveling with them in a private car and with a delightful party of their friends. I left Jacksonville on January 27, met the party in St. Louis and I started to Old Mexico. We stopped in all the Texas cities coming down—doing our traveling at night, except where the scenery was fine—spent a gay week in the City of Mexico, where I went to places and saw things that I never saw before. The American consul is a friend of Mr. Thompson's, and he gave us a banquet one evening, and a theater party another. Then we went to the bull-fight, where there were 15,000 people, President Diaz included. I could stand seeing the bulls killed and dragged out, but when it came to a beautiful horse I fainted and had to be taken to the hotel. We spent another week in Tampico, on the coast, where we went bathing, boating and fishing in the Gulf of Mexico. I had the fortune to pull out the greatest number of red snappers ever caught by a woman, so the old fisherman told us. They are delicious and we have had them for every meal. Of course it is very warm here. I am dressed now as I would be in July at home. Our car is filled with flowers and fresh fruits. I got two dozen American beauties, and a bunch of orchids this morning for 25 cents, and bananas, pineapples and coconuts are purchased for a mere song.

Our faces are homeward turned, but we do not expect to reach Lincoln before March 10th, stopping in New Orleans for a week. I will be with my friend until the last of March, then join Mae and Frank in California for two months, after which I expect to make Kentucky my home, and will, I hope, see a great deal of you. It was a bitter disappointment to Mae and Frank that they could not see you, but I shall have them visit me. Then we will have a happy family reunion. They sailed from New York on February 10th, and will reach San Francisco on March the 10th. You will hear from me again soon.

To the Farmers and Public Generally.

I have had the flour department of the Hazel Green Mill overhauled and put in first-class condition by the boss miller of the mountains, Ed Meeks, and an now making better flour than was ever turned out from this mill. We are now ready to grind for all that may see fit to patronize us, and respectfully solicit your patronage. Our grind days are Tuesdays and Fridays, but we will grind at any time on 20 bushels or more.

Bring on your wheat. We are in condition to do you good work. JAMES H. SWANGO, Receiver.

Why

Do people buy Hood's Sarsaparilla in preference to any other,—in fact almost to the exclusion of all others?

Because

They know from actual use that Hood's is the best, i. e., it cures when others fail. Hood's Sarsaparilla is still made under the personal supervision of the educated pharmacist who originated it.

The question of best is just as positively decided in favor of Hood's as the question of comparative sales.

Another thing: Every advertisement of Hood's Sarsaparilla is true, is honest.

The Cost of Wino.

This is oftentimes more than appears at first sight. It frequently costs reputation, friends, honor, wealth, health and even life. It costs nations as well as individuals. It cost France a king, a dynasty, years of strife, bloodshed and peril. The Duke of Bordeaux was heir to the throne and might have saved the nation from the horrors of revolution. He is said to have been a virtuous man, but drank wine. As a rule he did not drink enough to lose his self control. On one memorable occasion he took one glass too much. Going to his carriage, he stumbled, the horses were frightened, ran away, and he was killed. That glass of wine cost much in blood and treasure to the kingdom. Who can tell what any glass of intoxicants will cost until after it has been drunk? A moment's indulgence may bring years of suffering and disgrace.—Ex.

THE FARMING WORLD.

SIMPLE MILK TESTER.

An Australian Invention Superior to the Centrifugal Apparatus.

While the process of testing milk by means of the new centrifugal apparatus is simple enough to be soon mastered by intelligent dairymen, it is unfortunately complicated to lead to frequent mistakes on the part of persons who have no natural capacity for using mechanical appliances. Angus MacKay, professor of agriculture in the technical college, Sydney, has lately devised a testing apparatus which is claimed to be perfectly effective though it is so remarkably simple. According to the description published in an Australian paper, all that is required is a straight piece of glass tube, sealed at one end, and marked off into three divisions of ten cubic centimeters capacity, and a fourth which is graduated, the milk to be tested is poured into the tube, the line marking the first division. To the milk is added sufficient specifically prepared ether to fill the tube to the line marking the second division. The tube must be then closed perfectly airtight, either by pinning the finger firmly on it or with a suitable fitting cork. It should be held horizontally, and well shaken, until the ether and milk are well and thoroughly mixed. A special preparatory reagent is added sufficient to fill the tube to the line marking the third division. The tube is again corked and held in a horizontal position, and well shaken until the casing separates from the liquid mixture and forms a film. When all the casing is separated, the tube is stood in water, of a temperature of 104 degrees Fahrenheit, until the fat globules have all risen to the surface. It should then be stood in water of a temperature of 48 degrees Fahrenheit for ten or fifteen minutes, when the extent of the fatty layer can be read off. Lines marked in the fourth division give the volumetric one-tenth of a cubic centimeter. Care must be taken not to place the ether near or in close proximity to a flame, as it is very inflammable.

The advantage of this system lies in its simplicity, as anyone can, after a few lessons, without any previous knowledge of the principles of milk-testing, easily master all its technical details. All that is needed is the tubes, and any number of tests desired can be going through the process at the same time. Another most important consideration is the cost of the appliances. The first outfit for tubes and the bottle of ether and reagent is under one guinea, and each test costs a fraction over 2d. Another great advantage is that the process separates the butter fats, also casing and water, in such a perfect manner as to leave the milk entirely distinct, and in such a position as to leave the ratio of each easily determined; and yet not an iota of either is destroyed. Another recommendation is that there is no risk of generating odors which will taint even in the faintest degree the produce. This is an improvement on the old systems of testing by centrifugal force. Besides, there is no risk of failure during the manipulation or handling of the tubes, as the register can be seen without touching the tube with the hand or removing it from the cold water. There is also no risk of the record being wrong through jerks or defective manipulation during the process of working, as there is no machinery to get out of order or to run too fast or too slow, as the case may be.

FRESH DAIRY NOTES.

The secret of success in the dairy is to reduce the cost of making good goods.

Study the nature of your cows and fill in with their moods. It pays to be a working cow, as it pays to be a cow.

Give the cattle good feed and care, and the dust will remain thick on the cover of the barn medicine chest.—Farm, Field and Fireside.

Ex-Governor's statement that "any one thing section in the United States is gradually growing poorer and poorer" may well be questioned. Although much fertility is taken away with the milk, it is more than restored in the form of grain purchased for cattle feed.—Massachusetts Ploverman.

PRUNING IN WINTER.

Two Good Reasons for Doing the Work at This Season.

During the winter is one of the best times for doing the necessary pruning. There are two good reasons for this. One is that on most farms there is more work to do than can be done by the hands of the farmer. The other is that under favorable conditions the necessary pruning should be done while the trees are at rest, rather than while they are growing. But pruning should not be done haphazardly. In fact, cutting and shearing is not a particularly pleasant task, and it is done almost if not quite as much as pruning at all. Some pruning is necessary, not only to secure more fruit and a better shaped tree, but to maintain a better shaped tree. A low, open, spreading head is better in almost every way than a close upright growth. There is less risk of disease when the trees are at rest, and the work is less laborious and less to be feared. The low, spreading head will also shade and protect the trees from the hot, scalding sun.

All dead, dying or diseased wood should be cut out of trees as soon as noticed. It is of no possible advantage to allow limbs or branches of this kind to remain on the trees. One of the best plans of pruning is to commence when the trees are set out. At that time the tops should always be cut back in proportion to the roots. This is done properly at the start, and an annual pruning is given after that, the necessity for removing large limbs may be largely if not entirely avoided. But no limb or branch should be removed without a good reason. Pruning when the tree is at rest aids to promote fruiting and growth, while pruning during the growing season tends to check growth.

The pruning should not be done while the trees are frozen. After the work is done, gather up the trash and burn it. It not only detracts from the appearance of the orchard to have the brush lying around under the trees, but it affords a harboring place for vermin. —St. Louis Republic.

STAKING YOUNG TREES.

Bands Made from Old Rubber Boots Are the Most Appropriate.

Young trees set last spring or in the autumn, if in an exposed situation, should be staked up, and if this matter has been neglected it should now receive prompt attention, as the constant moving to and fro by the wind not only causes the tree to grow out of the perpendicular, but strains and often checks the bark, and infrequently girdles the tree where it continually grates against the frozen ground, all of which should be avoided. The general plan of staking is shown in our illustration, and three forms of bands are also exhibited.

They are best made from old rubber boots or shoes cut in strips seven inches long and from one to two inches wide; but in the absence of rubber this material may be used. In either case connection may be made with the stake with No. 12 annealed wire. Of course, the stake should be located upon the windward side of the tree, and when large trees are set, two or three stakes should be used. In all cases the band should be large enough to contain two years' growth of the trees without pressing, and unless in a very exposed situation, in two years from setting, a tree should be so firmly established as to dispense with further support.

About the Roots of Clover.

A German authority says that the root and stubble of a good crop of red clover weigh over three tons per acre when dry and contain 180 pounds of nitrogen, seven pounds of phosphoric acid, and 77 pounds of potash, all of which is placed, when turned under, in the most available form for growing crops. We call attention particularly to the large demand which clover makes on the soil for potash and phosphoric acid. If the resulting crops are removed from the soil one can easily see how clover can be used for soil robbing as well as for restoring fertility. It is this fact that has given rise to the English proverb: "Clover without manure makes the father rich and the children poor."

No business requires to be kept more emphatically under one's thumb than does successful dairying.

Have your cows gentle by kind treatment if you want big returns in milk and butter.

A BOOK OF TRAVEL.

The Southern Pacific, Marks an Era in Railway Literature by the Publication of a Sumptuous Book.

The railway literature of the past decade has, in some instances, been so surprisingly good that it has caused the publication of a book of travel, which has occasioned revolutions in the art of printing.

The Passenger Department of the Southern Pacific is about to put forth a book which will mark a radical advance upon anything heretofore achieved in this line, and which is likely to astonish those conservative people who would have given books, especially prepared, can be given away.

The work referred to is entitled "Through Storyland to Sunset Seas," and was written by H. S. Kneeland. It will be issued as a handsome volume of 222 pages, printed on enameled paper, made especially for the work, and illustrated by two hundred fine half-tone engravings executed in the highest style of art. The work contains no advertising, except as the narrative indirectly advertises the Southern Pacific.

It is a narrative, largely in dialogue, of the journey which four people made over the entire Southern Pacific System, and it tells cleverly all the things of interest which they saw and learned along the way. The unpublished romance which attached to the story of Louisiana travel—the story of the journey of the Pacific Mail steamer, the La Fite, as well as much of romance in family history, are dwelt upon, together with anecdotes of the Pacific coast, the people of Arizona and New Mexico where Indian and Spanish customs have left a legacy of tragic history. Then up and down through California the story takes the reader to every corner of the state, as far North as Portland, Oregon, and out on the Central Pacific across the Sierras to Salt Lake.

The book is the embodiment of careful research, and the point of view is so interesting along the line and tells so graphically the story of what is to be seen that it is a perfect guide book, while at the same time the narrative style which has been adhered to takes it out of the class of guide books and makes it what it really is—a work of travel, and one as fascinating to a person who has never seen the great Southwest or the Paradise of the Pacific as it is to him who has traversed all the region. ANNOUNCEMENT.
We are authorized to announce CHAS. T. HYRD, of Campton, as a candidate for the office of Circuit Court Clerk for Wolfe county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

LACONIC LIVE NEWS.

A large posse of United States deputy marshals left Jackson Sunday for Leslie county, where they expect to make raid on moonshine stills in the region lately made famous by the Jayhawkers.

The Breathitt circuit court began at Jackson Monday, and among the more important cases is that of B. F. French, who is charged with complicity in the assassination of the late Josiah Combs.

All reports to the contrary notwithstanding President Cleveland will not again be a candidate for presidential honors. At least that is the word passed down the line by one of his close personal friends and it is well that is so. The gray-eyed man of destiny has run his race and will never more be anything in politics—not even a figure-head.

A vote will probably be taken today in the Kentucky house of representatives on the Werner-Tompkins contest. Indications are that Mr. Tompkins will retain his seat, as he will likely get six votes outside his party. Little of interest was done in either house yesterday. The senate passed a bill giving sheriffs further time to collect delinquent taxes. No new bills will be offered after today.—Courier-Journal, March 3.

Congressman Jo M. Kendall has our thanks for a handsomely bound copy of the Report on the Social Statistics of Cities in the United States at the Eleventh Census, 1890, compiled by John S. Billings, M. D., surgeon in the United States army and expert special agent. We have not yet had the opportunity to examine the work critically but a hasty perusal of some of its pages leads to the conclusion that it is concise and complete.

The Courier-Journal of Tuesday says: "The Republicans at Frankfort are so nonplused over the withdrawal of Dr. Hunter that they were unable to get together a full caucus last night to nominate his successor as senatorial standard-bearer. Only forty Republicans met, and the caucus adjourned until tonight after hearing some rallying speeches that failed to rally. The friends of Congressman John W. Lewis and of Judge W. H. Holt are actively at work among the members of the caucus. The Blackburn men forced two ballots at yesterday's joint session, and on the first of them thirty-eight Republicans endorsed Dr. Hunter's free silver views by voting for him, despite his withdrawal."

Only ten or twelve days remain of the present session of the legislature and nothing has been done worthy of record. The grand old party promised to work wonders but so far it has proved absolutely inadequate to the trust. W. Godfrey Hunter, the Republican candidate for United States senator, being forced to define his position on the financial situation reluctantly admitted that he is for free silver and the sound money men at once deserted him. In consequence he withdrew from the race and it looks now like there will be no election. The general assembly has passed only two bills, one of which was vetoed by the governor and the other is as yet unsigned and may never become a law. As an august deliberative body the legislature now sitting is a magnificent failure, and the people generally hope never to see its like again. So mote it be.

Judge Beckner is fast gaining strength every day in the mountains. The Hustler was the first mountain paper to take a decided stand for him.—Jackson Hustler.

We have yet to see anything in any newspaper published in the Tenth district derogatory to Judge Beckner, and every publisher of a Democratic newspaper, save the editor of the Hustler, has voted and worked for him.—Clay City Chronicle.

Judge Beckner is an old newspaper man himself and he appreciates the influence of newspapers that have been so kind to him and that are saying so many nice things about him now. It was Bro. Morrow's misfortune and not his fault that he was not here to champion the Judge's cause before, so let us welcome his assistance this time and he and all others may rest assured that Judge Beckner is not ungrateful but is always willing to do all he can for his friends.—Winchester Democrat.

Letter From Texas.

BROWNVILLE, TEX., Feb. 25, '96.
SPENCER COOPER, Dear Friend:—"H" company of the 23rd regiment of infantry, of which I am an humble member, left Fort Clark, Texas, on the 18th day of December and arrived at this place, a distance of 400 miles, on January 14. We "hoofed" it all the way, the greatest expense being shoe leather. On arriving here "G" troop of the 7th cavalry, which is stationed at this point, gave us a grand supper, such as the lords might envy, and concert at night, at which there was present about one hundred of the beautiful Castilian maidens of Knightly Mexico, and fifty gallons of the native wine; can't say as to its quality, for strange to say, I don't partake.

We killed ten of the antler species, called deer, on our way down here, and small game in great numbers. This is a very pleasant place to live. Geese and ducks can be had here for less than the expense of shooting them. Oysters and fish are below par. Regards to Mrs. Cooper and friends generally in Hazel Green.

Your friend,

Will Henry Wilson, of Dayton, who has been confined to his bed by illness for a fortnight, was on Wednesday so far convalesced as to be up and about.

Death of Mrs. James James.

One of the saddest deaths we have ever been called upon to chronicle occurred on Wednesday morning last. Mrs. James, wife of Jimmie James, living on the road between here and Campton, was taken suddenly sick on Tuesday and died Wednesday morning, within about 48 hours, of something like spinal meningitis. All that loving hands and the science of medicine could do was resorted to but the angel of death claimed her. She was a daughter of Allison Rose, of Lee City, this county, and is said to have been a most estimable woman in all that makes woman lovely—a devout christian, a devoted wife and a dutiful mother. She had been married only about two years, and just when all seemed brightest in prospect for her and her husband she was called to a reward in that home not made with hands, leaving behind a devoted husband and two lovely little children, who have the sympathy of all people in our community. In the midst of life we are in death, but if all are as well prepared as was Mrs. James death can have no sting. Her husband idolized her and none knew her but to love her because of her womanly virtues, but He who doeth all things well took her to a heavenly home. So calmly did she pass from earth to the elysian fields of immortal glory that she reminded those who watched by her bedside of the lines of Hood:

We watched her breathing through the night,
Her breathing soft and low.

As in her breast the wave of life
Kept heaving to and fro.

Our very hopes belied our fears,
Our fears our hopes belied;

We thought her dying when she slept,
And sleeping when she died.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore it requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. TRIP IN AN INDIAN CANOE.

Exciting Ride of a Party of Government Officers on Leech Lake, Minnesota.

Among all the modes of progression hitherto invented, there is not one that can compare in respect to comfort and luxury with traveling in a birch bark canoe.

In the early autumn the writer, in company with a party of government officials, the head chief of the Chippewa Indians and 50 men of his tribe, met by appointment at the Indian agency on the south shore of Leech Lake, Minn., preparatory to a trip up the lake, thence up the river connecting with Lake Winnebago, and across the latter to a camp of the Winnebago Indians.

Leech Lake, with its shore line of 400 miles, is justly considered the most beautiful in natural scenery of the chain of lakes to be found in northern Minnesota; but to see it in all its beauty it is not enough to walk along its shores. One must ride over it. The river connecting the two lakes has a deep, swift current, and many dangerous rocks to avoid, which require both skill and experience in navigation. The party had been provided with 12 canoeists and skilled boatmen, the chief of the tribe being the leader. We made all our preparations and started, the passengers of the party being prepared to enjoy the boating. We proceeded evenly for a time, but presently the current quickened perceptibly. The best boatman shifted his place from the stern to the bow. Instinctively, I knew that there was hidden danger ahead. The faces of the men began to glow with excitement. Quicker and quicker flowed the current, breaking into little rapids, forming around the rocks, rising in tumbling waves from the shallows. One piercing yell from the old chief sent a thrill through every one, like the sudden shock of an electric current. He stood erect in the bow, and as his signal, given by a quick wave of the hand, every man of the crew in all the line of boats doubled his efforts. The paddle shafts crashed against the gunwale, the spray flew beneath the bending blades. The canoes fairly shook, leaping bodily at every stroke. Ahead was a wall of foam, its whiteness broken by black rocks, one touch against whose sides would rip the boats into tatters. The chief rose the second time, noting in that critical moment the line of deepest water. Then, with sharp words of command to his men, and bending to his work, he steered straight ahead. One canoe pitched headlong into space. Whack, came a great wave over the bow. Crash! came another on the side. Every man of the line shouted with excitement, as only an Indian knows how to do.

After the first plunge we were in a bewildering whirl of waters. With a shriek of command every man of the paddle the chief wrenched the canoe out of its course. Another stroke, another plunge forward and the boat pitched headlong out of the swift current, and soon glided rapidly into still water. —Chicago Times-Herald.

FAMOUS NATURAL CURIOSITY.

Vermont Has a Well Where Ice Forms at All Seasons.

One of the most famous natural curiosities in the United States is the wonderful "frozen well" at Brandon, Vt. It is the work of man played upon by a freak of nature. The well was dug in the year 1855, and has been a noted wonder since the first 15 feet of the excavation was made. It was then a great well, which extended to a depth of ten feet, where a four-foot bed of sticky yellow clay was encountered. After this clay stratum had been pierced and the total depth of the well was pronounced to be 14 feet, a deposit of soft frozen gravel was struck. Work which was done on the well during the next three or four weeks revealed the fact that this glacial deposit was exactly 155 feet in thickness. After the excavation had been extended through the frozen gravel a layer of sand (unfrozen) was revealed, and it was in this that water was found. A "basin" was then dug out (which gave the well a total depth of 45 feet) and the hole was then sealed up. Since that time the water in this peculiar well has never been more nor less than two feet in depth, and this is always frozen over with a sheet of ice of greater or less thickness, during the summer of 1895 the temperature at the bottom of "Brandon's frozen well" was phenomenally low—so low, in fact, that ice at one time formed to the depth of 22 inches on the two-foot sheet of water. At all times the water in the ice from four to eight inches thick on the walls of the well where they come in contact with the frozen stratum. —St. Louis Republic.

A New River.
Dr. Bell, of the Canadian geological survey, has recently reported the discovery of a previously unknown river emptying into the southern extremity of Hudson Bay. The river flows through a densely wooded country, about 250 miles in a north-southwesterly direction, and for a considerable distance is deep enough to be navigable for steamers. —Youth's Companion.

PETTY POLITICIANS.

Republican Senators Trailing with a Serious Tact.

It has been evident almost from the first that there has been no intent on either house of congress to treat the president's appeal for legislation for the relief of the treasury as anything but a bill to be passed and acted in a partisan game. Not one representative or senator has risen to the occasion and treated the matter in a statesmanlike manner, as its importance demands. Look at the last bill. The president wanted two things: First, authority to borrow gold on the security of a bond promising to pay gold and bearing, say, three per cent. interest; and, second, authority to redeem legal tender notes so that they would stay redeemed. The former would enable him to get the needed gold on the best possible terms and at the least cost to the people; the latter would reduce the amount to be borrowed to the lowest limit, and thus contribute toward reducing the cost to the people.

At no time has there been manifested a disposition to grant either of these things. The house bill provided for "coin" bonds at three per cent. and forbade the sales either of these or the bonds already authorized except by public advertisement, while the house refused to entertain for a moment the suggestion that when legal tender notes were redeemed they should stay redeemed.

The bill as it passed the house was worse than worthless for the purpose for which legislation was asked. Then the finance committee of the republican senate took it and made it as bad as any financial measure could be by converting it into an excise on one, two, silver bill, pure and simple. It having now become evident that the bill thus transformed would pass the senate some time and then go to the legislative garbage box it was due to the public that it should go to its destiny without delay.

But this was not to be. We have had many dreary days of talk, partly about the distribution of hay and pumpkins, and the end is not yet. The amendment stage has not yet been passed. The political fire workers have yet to bring forward the compromise schemes designed to round up certain classes of republicans. Senator Lodge, a republican, has already offered a substitute amendment leaving out all about silver and gold and authorizing a loan of $100,000,000 in greenbacks or anything else that comes handy for the connection of some defense. Senator McKimley is reported to have an amendment up his sleeve providing that the secretary of the treasury may borrow gold enough to retire the greenbacks and treasury notes, but that the mint may be opened to the coinage of silver for the benefit of depositors until the amount of silver dollars so coined equals the amount of notes retired. And Senator Gorman is said to be ready with a similar amendment, but providing for unlimited free coinage of silver not only during, but forever after, the retirement of legal tender notes.

All this babble and flapping small politics is less lawful than it would be if there were any probability that any one of the numerous schemes to undermine the public credit should be successful. But it does harm not only because it discourages the hope of any reasonable action for the improvement of the currency and the protection of the standard, but because there is a possibility of mischievous legislation, like that of 1890, or worse, and in great numbers of transactions possibilities as well as probabilities have their influence for good or ill. If congress would let the worst be known and go home, it would render the country a negative service. —Chicago Chronicle.

Mr. Platt's aggressive boom for Gov. Morton has already struck an ugly snag. The fact has been unearthed—doubtless by some nosing McKinleyites—that the governor while a member of congress steadily supported New York city's commercial interests "against those of the American manufacturer, mechanic and farmer," and voted to put salt on the free list. The free salt precedent is particularly heinous in a presidential aspirant, and may give Mr. Platt a world of trouble in his efforts to prick the chrysalis of seltzer on the flimsy tail of the nomination. —Philadelphia Record.

Read, a flippant and shallow mixture of blaine and ingalls; McKinley, a commonplace droner of one song, who never yet could lead a tariff debate; Allison, a coxswain and a bending rood—here are the three mighty men of the republican host. Harrison is no longer big in politics. Morton in his prime was not strong enough to deal with Garfield, except through shrewd men, and now stands for nothing except Tom Platt's dummy. —St. Louis Republic.

Speaker Reed, it is said, wants congress to adjourn by May. Amen! Congress has shown that it is not going to pass any legislation that will do the country any good. The next best thing it can do is to adjourn before it can pass any legislation that will do the country any harm. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

POLITICS AND MANUFACTURERS.

An Association Which Is Not a Credit to the Country.

If the newly elected president of the American Manufacturers' association is a fair representative of the prevailing sentiment in the association, the latter is to be congratulated on his selection; but the country is not to be congratulated on the association. The country has abundant use for an association devoted to the encouragement of manufactures and manufacturing interests; but it has no use for an organization which holds these purposes so lightly in its hands. The association is a partisan political theory, and which proposes to commit the manufacturers of the country to a protective tariff. The number of manufacturers who do not believe in the protective theory or doctrine is very large—quite as large probably as the number of those who do believe in that doctrine. Such an effort as the newly elected president of the association made in his address to commit the association to protection must inevitably result—if the members have the courage of their opinions—in splitting the association in twain, and such a result is one upon which the country will look with a good deal of complacency.

There is an unwritten law—a law of decency—which ought to prevent a man put in the position of this newly chosen head of the manufacturers' association from making any such display of himself. Mr. Search did in Chicago. Under that unwritten law politics have no place in such an organization; and the man who seeks to introduce them or to commit his hearers or his organization to his own partisan views on any subject is a transgressor. If the republican manufacturers of the country wish to form an organization for the booming of protection or any other article in the party creed they have an undoubted right to do so. They have no right to commit or attempt to commit an organization composed of democrats as well as republicans, of free traders and revenue reformers as well as protectionists, to republican tenets on any subject. It is not only bad taste, but bad faith to do so; and the new president of the American association must be convicted of both.

It has no necessary bearing upon the great task or good faith of the official mentioned to say that he is not even an intelligent exponent of the principle for which he contended before the association, and to which he sought to commit the body; but such is the patent fact. When he talked about securing adequate protection for American industries by the reenactment of the McKinley tariff, and in the same breath of an abundance of revenue being the one thing needful, he showed himself utterly incapable of grasping or comprehending the first principles of protection or of revenue. If he had had any capacity in that regard, or if he had ever read the history of the tariff and McKinley, he would have known that the latter was and is utterly incompatible with the "adequate revenue" which he professes to regard as of prime necessity, and that its being so is its chief merit in the eyes of its intelligent advocates. It was for the decreasing of revenue, not increasing it, that the McKinley tariff was adopted, and, as we have shown on more than one occasion, it served admirably the purpose its framers had in view.

If President Search would for a moment forego his partisanship and consider the subject intelligently, he would see that this must be so. He would see that just in proportion as a tariff becomes really protective it ceases to produce revenue because it prevents the importation of the goods from which a revenue is to be collected.

It is not at all to the credit of the American Manufacturers' association that it listened without protest to the partisan harangue of its new president. It would have been far better occupied in discussing and adopting the resolutions of sympathy with struggling Cuba. —Detroit Free Press.

Scrofula

Manifests itself in many different ways, like goitre, swellings, running sores, boils, skin rashes and pimples and other eruptions. Scarcely a man is wholly free from it in some form. It is a disease which is easily cured from the blood by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Thousands of voluntary testimonies tell of suffering from scrofula, often hereditary and most dangerous, positively and permanently cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 28.
Senator Allen, of Nebraska, did a very unusual thing when he presented the ultimatum of the Populist senators to the Republicans on the tariff bill. He said that if the Republicans would agree to vote for an amendment to the bill providing for the free coinage of silver the Populist senators would furnish the votes needed to put the amended bill through the senate. Of course Senator Allen knew that his proposed bill would not be accepted, and he probably made it only for the purpose of taunting the Republicans who were already in a bad humor because of the refusal of free silver Republicans to support the tariff bill.

Senator Carter's explanation of why he and four other silver Republicans refused to vote for the house tariff bill was far more satisfactory to the Populist, and silver senators on both sides of the chamber, than it was to the other senators. He was especially bitter in what he said of President Cleveland and what he called his Republican supporters in the senate.

The talk on Cuban affairs in congress has brought a powerful Spanish lobby to Washington, for the purpose of trying either to head off any action or to make the action taken meaningless so far as it will commit this government in favor of the Cubans. Spain is said to be hard up, but it seems to have money enough to hire an army of spies scattered throughout the United States to watch everybody suspected of strongly sympathizing with the Cubans, and to maintain a lobby in Washington which is spending money freely to influence the opinion of congressmen. The friends of Cuba, in congress, are expressing the opinion that members of the administration are much more zealous in placing U. S. officials under the orders of the Spanish minister, to capture alleged filibustering parties bound for Cuba, than is actually necessary to strictly maintain the neutrality laws.

"He laughs best who laughs last," is ancient, but it is none the less applicable to the present situation in the senate. The Republicans have been doing considerable laughing at the Democrats because of the financial differences between the Cleveland wing and the silver wing of the party, but the Democrats had their laugh when the open split between the gold Republicans and the silver Republicans took place on the floor of the senate this week, showing that it was but another instance of "the pot calling the kettle black" for either of the old parties to laugh at the other on account of financial differences. However, it was nuts for some of the Democrats to hear Senator Morrill, apparently following the advice lately given by Secretary Carlisle, by trying to read the silver men out of the Republican party, and Senator Teller replying, that although the silver men could get along without the party better than the party could get along without them they did not intend them to allow themselves to be read out because they declined to change their financial views to accord with those held by the Cleveland Democracy and the Morrill Republicanism of the country. He said the silver men would stay in the Republican party until they got ready to get out.

The A. P. A. won a decided victory this week when the house amended the Indian appropriation bill by providing that none of the money therein appropriated should go to Catholic Indian schools. It is a question whether the senate will strike out that amendment. The senate has already shown, by confirming the nomination of Gen. Coppinger, that a large majority of its members are opposed to the A. P. A., but sudden changes are not unknown in that body.

The limited chances that a bill favorable to the building of the Nicaragua canal with government assistance, either direct or by guarantee of the canal company's bonds, had to get through congress at this session have been materially lessened by a determined crusade against the canal under any conditions, on the ground that it would, if constructed, be more of a menace to the peace of the United States than a benefit commercially. The friends of the canal still express confidence that a favorable bill will pass the house and the senate, but that is just what they are here to say. This new crusade may or may not have any more substantial backing than the desire of the owner of the New York Herald to get notoriety for his paper, but it will, all the same, influence nine men out of every ten who were in doubt, to declare against the canal. To that extent the crusade will be a factor in the situation.

Ambassador Bayard may as well brace himself to receive that house resolution of censure, for having spoken slightly of Americans and American affairs, as he will get it very soon. The resolution, has been reported to the house, and is going to be adopted, sure pop.

One-Gallused Beckner.

Judge William M. Beckner, congressman from the Tenth district and a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress this fall, in an interview as to his choice for the Democratic nomination for the presidency at Chicago:

"I am for William R. Morrison for president because:

"First.—He is in hearty sympathy with the masses of the people. He is a 'one-gallused' Democrat.

"Second.—He is a pioneer in the fight against the protective system of the Republican party.

"Third.—He is a conservative man on the financial question more acceptable to both sides than any one now prominent in the party.

"Fourth.—He was shot to pieces in the Union Army, and will run well in the north, whilst always fair and generous to the south.

"Fifth.—He has been faithfully and vigorously opposed to corporate power and would represent the Democratic theory of government better than any available candidate I have heard suggested."

Arrested for Embezzlement.

A dispatch from Morehead of Feb. 29, says: "J. D. Phipps, of Morgan county, was arrested here last night at 11 p. m., by Sheriff Tassie, of Rowan county, on a charge of embezzlement of the county funds of Morgan county. Mr. Phipps is one of the most popular sheriffs in Eastern Kentucky. He served as deputy sheriff of Morgan county four years and was then elected sheriff.

The county attorney of Morgan said this morning that there was nothing in the charge; that he had settled with Phipps only a few weeks since, and that Phipps had lost heavily by fire during the last year, and especially in the recent fire at Morehead. Phipps will be taken back to Morgan today, and says he will go to jail and then bring suit for false imprisonment.

The arrest has caused great excitement, and wholesale houses have begun to attach his goods, but the county attorney of Morgan county assures them that there is nothing in the charge."

DON'T STOP TOBACCO

IT'S INJURIOUS TO STOP SUDDENLY and don't be imposed upon by buying a remedy that requires you to do so, as it is nothing more than a substitute. In the sudden stoppage of tobacco you must have some stimulant, and in most cases, the effect of the stimulant, be it opium, morphine, or other opiate, leaves a far worse habit contracted. Ask your druggist about BACO-CURO. It is purely vegetable. You do not have to stop using tobacco with BACO-CURO. IT WILL NOT. WHEN YOU STOP and your desire for tobacco will cease. Your system will be as free from nicotine as the day before you took your first cher or smoke. An iron-clad written guarantee to absolutely cure the tobacco habit in all its forms, or money refunded. Price $1.00 per box or 2 boxes (30 days treatment and guaranteed cure) $2.50. For sale by all druggists or will be sent by mail upon receipt of price. SEND SIX TWO CENT STAMPS FOR SAMPLE BOX. Booklets and proofs free.

Office of THE PIONEER PRESS COMPANY, C. W. HORNICK, Supt. ST. PAUL, MINN., September 7, 1904.

REURKA-CHEMICAL AND MFG CO., LA CROSSE, WIS.
Dear Sirs—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fifteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became affected, until my physician told me I must give up the use of tobacco for the time being, at least. I tried the so-called "Keely Cure," "No-To-Bac," and various other remedies, but without success, until I accidentally learned of your "Baco-Curo." Three weeks ago today I commenced using your preparation, and today I consider myself completely cured; I am in perfect health, and the horrible craving for tobacco, which every inveterate smoker fully appreciates, has completely left me. I consider your "Baco-Curo" simply wonderful, and can fully recommend it. Yours very truly, C. W. HORNICK.
